

THE SECOND TIME AROUND

I am so glad you could join me for _____. You may be wondering why I asked you to join me tonight. Well, I have something very _____ to ask (adjective)
(a meal)
you. As you know, I have just returned from _____ and have a very (somewhere bad)
important question to ask you. I know, I broke up with you last year, but I wonder if now you might consider being my _____ again. Before you answer, you should (female-relation) know that I have _____ and want to turn over a new _____. You (verb past tense) (noun)
should also know that I have been thinking a lot and have decided that I was not a(n) _____ person to be around in the past. You should also know that it is you (adjective)
that I want because you are so _____ and all I have thought of while I was in (bland adjective)
_____. Before you say anything _____ and before you figure out
(same bad place) (endearment)
why I can't look you in the eye, please realize that you will never get a more _____ (adjective)
offer than this one. In fact, I am betting on the fact that you have a very _____ (diminutive)
sense of self and will take to whatever I offer you.

So? What do you say _____? Give me another _____?
(endearment) (noun)